A Level Fine Art

A Level Fine Art is a traditional and long standing A Level that underpins all art specialisms. Students will be taught core skills such as drawing, critical art history analysis and idea development that will give them the foundation to progress into many different areas within the creative sector. Many students combine academic 'facilitating' subjects with A Level Fine Art if they have a strong creative ability. This gives students the opportunity to stand out from the crowd, to demonstrate their creative and practical ability and problem solving skills. It also has different deadlines and structure to exam driven A Levels which can often balance well in the academic year.

Students will learn many new techniques and media, and will be encouraged to experiment with mixed media. Students have access to a range of art materials and the School's Print room, in lessons and study periods. Our students progress from A Level Fine Art directly on to prestigious Degree courses at Cambridge, Edinburgh, Manchester and UCLan amongst others. Some students choose to apply to Art Foundation from A Level Fine Art, and have secured places at oversubscribed courses at Central St Martins, Falmouth and Glasgow School of Art and Manchester. We also have our own Foundation Diploma in Art & Design course that students can progress to.

A Level Fine Art leads to many challenging, exciting and lucrative careers such as Architecture, Interior Design, Art Therapist, Gallery Curator, TV and Magazine Art Directors, Practising Artist, Fashion Design and Buyer, Art Lecturer, Education Development Officer, to name just a few!

To complement academic studies, students can also join our Art Academy, to explore new ideas within different specialist areas. Furthermore, our students go on exciting trips to a variety of museums and galleries to gather primary source imagery to base their work on, as well as looking at the work of other artists to inspire their own.

If you are excited reading all the above, and want to let your creativity flourish, A Level Fine Art at Runshaw College is definitely for you!
